

Cornwall Trefoil Guild members take a HORSE-DRAWN BARGE TRIP

On Saturday 23rd July, Trefoil Guild Members from around Cornwall went on a day trip to Tiverton to enjoy a cruise on a horse-drawn barge. This particular barge, the 75 seater, 'Tivertonian' is one of the last remaining horse-drawn barges in the UK.

The Tiverton Canal Co. aims to let you hear memorable tales, anecdotes and historical facts about the Grand Western Canal, and they are keen to make you appreciate the peace and tranquillity you get when travelling by horse-drawn barge!

Not everything went to plan, however, and our tranquillity was disturbed because our coach broke down - and part of the voyage had to be missed. Nevertheless, the weather was kind, and lunch at the 'Weary Traveller' near Cullompton was excellent. The cup of tea at the end of the cruise was especially welcome!

Everyone agreed it had been a great chance to meet up and spend a day together.
